CITY INTELLIGENCE, GI ORGE F. ALBERTI.

Be in Dend—A Sketch of his Life—ireidents in his Intamons cureer.

Pepular expectation is often at fault. If, some twenty-five years since, any one had been bold enough to predict to the ruder classes of our population—particularly, to the colored people of the city—that George F, Alberti—the publican—the oppressorof the poor—the professional ball-goer—the gallows-man—the heartless vindicator of the merciless Fugitive—shave law—the man at sight of whom children ran affrighted, would die a natural death, he would have been derided and laughed to scorn. But so the Fates decreed. On Thursday last, so quietly as atmost to escape the knowledge of any save those few who stood by his bed, he "shifted off this mortal con," and went—to meet his God! He was seventy-nine years of age. In his younger days he was known as infamous. As he ruthlessly ground the sorrows of the unfortunate and desperate, so the tenure of his life, like the sword of Damocles, for years seemed suspended but by a hair. His dead body revealed the ragged scars of wounds made by weapons which sought his life. He was the son of Dr. George F. Alberti, a physician of some note weapons which sought his life. He was the sot of Dr. George F. Alberti, a physician of some not in years agone. He received an excellent chies-tion, which rounded on and polished parts naturally good. Physically he was very powerfully built, po-sessing a vice-like grip and athletic frame. Ever tempered and placid more by nature than by habit is was well-righ impossible to irritate him to a poin tempered and placed more by nature than by habit, it was well-right impossible to irritate him to a point of anger—a disposition which gave him every advantage in the find of life he led; determined and persistent, he wilden falled in any enterprise he nucleicok. Combined with these characteristics, however, he mitured, in a heart cold and hard by birth, feelings of indifference and contempt for others, especially for those whom affliction had overtaken, and was never known, when shielded by a w it entrusted to him for execution, to delay it a moment to accommodate the unfortunate, to ease the rigor of his manner in serving it, or display any the slightest companction for the misery it might occasion to a household. As the display of compassion was no part of his vocation, he never encouraged any in his boson. During many years of his life he was, beyond all question, the most unpopular man in Philadesphia. Still, the disfavor in which he was held acose in its degree from his having rendered almost of shooxious to the good eitizons of the community by any infrincense of the hwand immunity from panishment. On the other hand, the edium with which he was burdened was a consequence of the mainer in which he carried out the decrees of the law. It seems to have been his fortune to be complements in the execution of laws that were unpopular, of laws which had caceived the righteous reproduction of all the incrediol.

Either his poverty or his fate led him into a course inat were unpopular, of laws which had coccived the righteous reprobation of all the merciful.

Either his poverty or his fate led him lato a course of life which made him vary notorious. His earliest appearance before the public was as a ward constable, attending the office of a justice of the peace in Southwark, whose reputation was that of an oppressor of the poor. Alcerti executed with vigor writs which his superior issued, and, it was frequently said, without feeling. Time came when he could no longer be elected constable, and he then appeared as an instrument of the law in a department which, at the time, was exceedingly odious to the people. He became a collector of militia fines, thamilitia law being very unpopular. His method of pie. He became a concern of middle lines, has milital law being very unpopular. His method of obtaining the sums which the Commonwealth de-manded from her citizens was rough, and frequently led to riot and collision. When the militia law falled led to riot and collision. When the milita law failed Alberti made his appearance in a new character, the became the champion and one of the most vigilant officers who could be found in the execution of the Fugitive Slave law. He was engaged for some years in almost every case in the seizure of negroes who were alleged to have absended from their Southern masters. As the act of Congress justified him under his warrant, it was difficult to do anything with him. In 1876, however, he got himself. thing with him. In 1850, however, he got himsel to difficulty. Having, in 1817, received authority from James S Mitchell, a citizen of Maryland, to arrest a black woman named Betsy Galloway, alias Catharine Thompson, he was engaged in the three following years in an attempt to find the woman. In 1856 he captured her and took her, with her infant, before an alderman of the city, who, deciding that the proof was clear, give a cartificate that she was a captured her and took her, with her infant, before an alderman of the city, who, deciding that the proof was clear, gave a certificate that she was a slave, and ordered her return to Maryland. Against this action there does not seem to have been any legal objection; but the trouble was that when the woman was sent back to slavery, her child, who had been born in New Jersey, and was therefore claimed to be tree, was sent with her, and thereby har led over to the master, to be held as a slave. For the offense Alberti and Frisby Price, a colored man, who assisted, were arrested on the charge of kidmapping, and being fried beion? Indee Parsons, they were both convicted. Alberti was spit enced to pay a line of $100, and to undergo an imprisonment of eight years. Alberti remained in prison for some time, but was finally pardened. Under the circumstances, if any other person had been convicted of the cinne, connected as it was with subservience to the slaveholding power, which was popular before the Rebellion, his case would have excited much interest. But Alberti had, by a long course of unfavorable conduct, made his all so unpopular that he was without frier is, and no interest was felt in his fate. Of the years Alberti has not been before the public in any way. His career has ended quietly, which years ago many thought must eventually close by the hand of violence. close by the hand of violence.

A STRANGE Live.—One of the most singular cases of an individual living to a good old age, in spite of the most trying circumstances, has lately come to notice in an obitinary published in the Age. William C. McCormick, Esq., a worthy citaten of Altoons, lately died, aged sixty-three years. He had held the position of collector of tolls on the Canal and Portage Railroad some years since, and appears to have been universally respected. Yet, old to relate, he was an "ardent friend and constant reader of the Age from its inception to the close of his life." What a varied experience has he endured; what evention chapters has he seen recorded; what wenderful pro-A STRANGE LIFE .- One of the most singular cases changes has he seen recorded; what wonderful pro-phecies, yet unfulfilled, has he mused upon!

again sat in the Grand Jury room of the new court house and continued the hearing of testimony in the city election contests. The respondents having concluded their case last week, the contestants to-day began the offering of testimony in rebuttal. Before it was commenced, nowever, Mr. G. Russell, clerk in the office of the Court of Common Pleas, appeared and gave in evidence the taily list and hourly returns of the Fifth division, Twenty-fourth ward, and the hourly returns of the Thirteenth division of the Nineteenth ward on behalf of the respondents.

Mr. Gerhart remarked that by the fally list of the Fifth division, Twenty-fourth ward, it appears that Donegan, for Prothonotary, received 350 votes; that the hourly returns allow him the same number, but by a mistake in the addition it is made 354.

By the hourly returns of the Thirteenth division, Nineteenth ward, it appeared that Furman Sheppard, for District Attorney, is credited with 142 votes, whereas the addition shows that he received 149 votes, being an error of seven votes. In the same returns, A. W. Fletcher, for Prothonotary of the Common Pleas, is credited with 141 votes, whereas the addition shows leing an error of five.

As Mr. Russell cleant, Descriptor Given and Mr. the addition shows 146 votes, being an error of five.

county officers of the Sixteenth division of the Twenlieth word.

Floreher. lonegan 278 263
Instead of Mr. Sheppard's majority being 45, as per the returns, it is by the ballots only 5; and instead of Mr. Fletcher buying a majority of 10, the ballots show a majority of 5 for Mt. Donegan.

A Remarkable Correspondence between Generals Quesada and Lesca.

A letter from Havana, dated July 20, says: A rich correspondence is reported to have taken lace recently between Quesada and Lesen, the abstance of which is this:-Quesada sent an officer, under a flag of truce, to Lesca, with a list of the names of a few Spanish officers and soldiers in his power, and proposed to exchange them for an equal number of Cuban chiefs and soldiers held by the Spa-Lesca's reply was to the effect Spain would indeed display ome pride were she to accept such a ridiculous proposition, looking to the fact that she counts upon the loyal hearts of 17,000,000 of people to defend her, and that the loss or salvation of ten or twelve persons was of but little consequence. especially as it was a matter of one's country being at stake." "Beside," he said, "that he held none of Quesada's men as prisoners, for, as soon as they fell into his hands, he had ordered them to be shot, and he should continue to pursue the same course." When this answer was received by Quesada, he called the Spanish prisoners together, and said:—"Senores: I hold in my hand a death-warrant issued against you, drawn up by your own chief, Lesea. The reading of it inspires me with horror." So saying, he handed the paper to one of his aids, who read it aloud. Seeing that the prisoners were full of indignation at the sentiments contained in Lesca's note, Quesada then said to them:—"Senores: General Quesada is not a General Lesca, I par-don you all. You can leave when you will, and, to effect a safe exit for you, I will issue the necessary passports." When the General had finished speaking, the liberated Spaniards burst forth in shouts for Quesada and Free Cuba. Only two of them asked the necessary protectionpapers to go to Havana, where they had families, nd all the others immediately incorporated themselves with the liberating army.

The Dissensions of the New York Junta. The New York Tribune of this morning says:-It is stated on good authority that Senor Morales Lemus was in this city on Saturday, endeavoring to arrange certain matters of dispute between himself and the Junta. After the failure of the late expedition. Senor Lemus is stated o have written a letter to the Junta, laying the dame of the failure on certain prominent mempers of that body. The Junta thereupon with frew their support from Lemus, and invested Senor Macias, formerly a railroad contractor in Buenos Ayres, with the office of President, in place of Mora. Mora himself was a party in this movement. Lemus refused to recognize the new President, and asserted that he himself was alone authorized to direct Cuban affairs in the United States, by the commission which he held from Cespedes. The Junta, however, refused to recognize his authority, and the consequence was that Lemus came to the city on Saturday morning to endeavor, if possible, to make an amicable arrangement. What success he has had is not known, but all patriotic Cubans hope that the interests of the young struggling republic will no longer be injured by petty internal dissensions. The rumor that prevalled on Friday afternoon that General Al-fieno had been shot was caused by a rather strong dispute having taken place on that day etween the General and some of the filibusters lately released, who were pressing him for money. The General had already let them have some money, which they had spent in liquor, and he refused to aid them a second time.

Hopes of the Cubans.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. Washington, July 26 .- The Secretary of the Cuban Junta, who is now here, makes no secret of the fact that all the patriot Cubans are watching with anxiety the developments of General Sickles' mission to Spain, He says that if Sickles accomplishes all that he expected to do when he left the country, the Cuban troubles will be at an end by next December.

He declines, of course, to tell all he knows about the matter, but from the tone of his conversation it is evident that the Cubaus favor the project of purchasing Cuba from Spain, provided the United States will go security on her bonds or assist in raising the funds.

Marine Corps. Secretary Robeson has relaxed somewhat the stern discipline of the Marine Corps of the navy. It has been customary heretotore to inflict very severe punishments upon marines found guilty of any offense. Mr. Robeson thinks that in many instances the findings and sentences of courts'-martial are unnecessarily severe, and he has refused to approve several that have recently been laid before him. The Conservative Mississippians will make a vigorous effort to have the Presisident remove General Ames, Military Commandant of that district, before the election in November. An Important Legal Decision. A correspondent of the New York Time writes as follows from Macon, July 20:—

The recent decision of the Supreme Court of Georgia in the case of Chapman vs. Warrer Aikin has created great excitement and discontent throughout the State. It has decided that judgment-creditor who was prevented by th Stay laws during the war from levying his judg ment against real estate, and recovering hi money, loses his lien altogether after four years if the land to which the lien attached was sold to a third party, and that where the land was not sold the judgment is dormant and must be revived. By this decision thousands of creditors will lose their property, and be in reality de spoiled without any neglect or fault of their own. This pushes "relief" several points be-yond anything which the Convention or Legislature ever contemplated. Chief Justice Brown and Judge McCay delivered this judg-ment, and Judge Warner, who is universally admitted to be a much better lawyer, and standhigher than either or both of his associates, dissented in very severe terms, giving it to be as clearly understood as official decorum would permit, that the judgment is unsound, unjust, and a perversion of law to meet a political emergency.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. The Mississippi Contest.

Washington, July 26 .- Notwithstanding the onslaught upon General Ames, the District Commander of Mississippi, by the conservatives. the radical Republicans say that he acts impartially, and does not meddle with politics, and maintains good order in the State. AMONG THE INDIANS.

Rescue of a White Woman who had been a Captive of the Redskins for Two Years. The Omaha Herald tells the following:-

About four years since a family named Weigel removed from Ohio to Kansas, and settled on a stream known as Solomon's Fork. The family consisted of John Weigel and wife and three children, two boys and a girl, the former aged respectively ten and twelve years, and the latter three. A homestead of eighty acres was taken up, and in two years was all under cultivation. At that time, as our readers will remember from accounts published, the Crow-feet Indians made a raid through that portion of Kansas, leaving death and destruction in their wake. The Weigel farm was attacked and the entire family, except Mrs. Weigel, butchered. That day was the last time she was seen until Sunday last, when General Carr made an attack on an Indian village near Platte Valley Station. Two white women were seen by the soldiers in

Two white women were seen by the soldiers in possession of the Indians struggling as if to make their way to the ranks of General Carr's command. An order was given to "charge" and rescue the women, which was obeyed with a will by the brave men, but before they could gain possession of the women a savage sunk his tomahawk into the head of one of them whose only known into the head of one of them, whose only known name is Susanna, who fell to the earth. Another red devil fired a revolver at Mrs. Weigel, but the shot fortunately struck a rib and glanced off, causing but a slight wound. Before any other murderous demonstrations could be made, a private soldier, whose name and company are at present unknown, put spurs to his horse and rushed gallantly to the very heart of the Indian band, grasped Mrs. Weigel by the waist, lifted her on to his horse, and galloped away to the wagon train, where all care and attention were given to the unfortunate woman. Too much raise cannot be bestowed upon this brave man, and was his name but known it would be a pleasure to herald it forth to the world. The battle soon afterwards came to a termination by the capture of the entire Indian outfit, with the exception of those who fell early in the fight.

been a prisoner among the Indians since the summer of 1867. For a year she had been the forced mistress of a Crow foot chief named "Buffalo Man," who tired of her after a year and a half, and disposed of her to another chief named "Tall Tree," the consideration being a couple of ponies. She has become very coarse of feature, caused by exposure. Her joy at being rescued was very great, but she seems, after all, discontented, and at times tired of life. At the time of first capture, she was tied hand and foot, and forced to pander to the hellisk desires of her captors. Mrs. Weigel has relatives in Ohio, who have been notified of her recapture, and will immediately remove her to her old Ohio home.

Mrs. Weigel stated to an officer that she had

HAHN.

His Views on the Present Condition of the South.

A Washington despatch, dated yesterday, says:--Ex-Governor Michael Hahn, of Louisiana, editor of the New Orleans Republican, arrived here this morning on his way to the North, where he intends to spend some months. In re-ply to the question, What is the political condi-tion of Louisiana? he answered: "We do not talk politics in Lonisiana any longer. All the excitement and bitterness of one year ago has died out, and people are now devoting themselves almost entirely to money making and commercial pursuits." Mr. Hahn represents his own State to be in a most flourishing condition, and predicts that the South generally will soon be the most prosperous and richest section of the country. He says that the cotton and sugar crop of Lonisiana this year will be the largest and best ever produced will be the largest and best ever produced there. In all the States through which he has passed in his trip here he has seen evidences of returning industry and wealth, from which he augurs the most beneficial results to the South and the whole country. The cotton crop is so far advanced that the worm can do no harm even if it should make its appearance, and even in Virginia he saw evidences of control industry. in Virginia he saw evidences of Leneral industry and thrift. So far as the city of New Orleans is concerned, he said that it is prosperous beyond the most sanguine expectations. One bank there has recently declared a dividend of over thirty per cent., and the yellow fever has not yet made its appearance. The people cease to talk about the war, and there is a general disposition to forget and forgive the past.

The Last Eric Railway Collision. The collision which occurred near the Jersey City depot of the Eric Rallway, on Wednesday evening last, appears to have resulted in the injury of a greater number than was at first reported, although the injuries were not in any case of a serious character. Among the number who were slightly hurt was the conductor of the train. Mr. James, who resides near Paterson, N. J., is not in any dangerous condition. His injuries are said to have been nothing more serious than several bruises upon the body, a slight scratch upon the cheek and a sprained ankle. The employes of the company it the depot persist in denying the truth of Bogert's statement, but as Mr. Bogert was there (to his cost) when the disaster occurred, it would seem as if he ought to be informed with regard to it.—N.
